

Lonergan University College
announces a Public Lecture by

Charles Taylor

Professor of Philosophy
McGill University

"A Dostoevskian Understanding of Contemporary Terrorism"

"The earth will resound with the cry: 'A new, just law is coming.' The oceans will seethe, the whole show will come crashing down, and then we'll plan to set up a stone structure. For the first time! We shall build it, we alone!"

— the character Verkhovensky
from Devils, Fyodor Dostoevsky

A followup seminar
at Lonergan College
at 10 a.m.
Tuesday, November 2.

Co-sponsored by:
Department of Philosophy
Department of Political Science

St. Petersburg in Flames. From L'Illustration, vol. 40 (Paris, 1862), 4

Monday evening, November 1, 1993

7:30 - 9:30 p.m.

F.C. Smith Auditorium

7141 Sherbrooke Street West

Loyola Campus

for information call 848-2280